GROWING GAUTENG TOGETHER

Temo was excited. “I want to grow my own vegetables,” she said. Her dad said he would help her.

First they used a garden fork
to make
the soil
soft.

Then they
planted carrot,
tomato,
spinach and
bean seeds and
watered them.

One day Temo saw a mess in her garden. “Mommy! Daddy! The goats are eating my vegetables,” she cried.

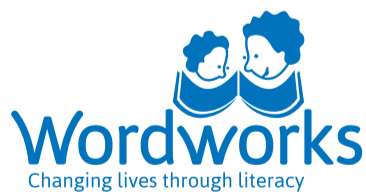

So Temo and her father built a fence around the garden. But oh no, the cows opened the gate with their horns.

Temo put a padlock on the gate. But now the birds were eating the plants, so they put a net over the garden.

When they were ready, Temo picked her vegetables and helped her mother make a delicious soup for supper. Temo felt very proud.
